- Handwriting requires frequent and discrete,
   direct teaching.
- Pupils should be able to form letters correctly and confidently. The size of the writing implement should allow the pupil to hold it easily and correctly, to avoid forming bad habits.
- Left handed pupils should receive specific teaching to meet their needs.

Additional information: Handwriting families could include, for example: (curly caterpillar)
c,a,d,e,g,o,q,f,s; *x when drawn cursively; (long ladder) i,j,l,t,u,y; (one armed robot) b,h,k,m,n,p,r; (zig zag) v,w,z (See Gateway to Writing - National Strategy Archived Resources - also included on Kent's Literacy Toolkit.)

Kent strongly recommends that handwriting should be taught as a modelled, supervised and guided activity, ensuring that pupils do not form habits which are unhelpful later. Correct letter formation and orientation is crucial.

- I can write capital letters and digits of the correct size, orientation and relationship to one another and to lower case letters
- I can use spacing between words that reflects the size of the letters

Non statutory:

- Pupils should revise and practise correct letter formation frequently.
- They should be taught to write with a joined style as soon as they can form letters securely with the correct orientation. (This implies that it is not appropriate to rush children to join letters until they have mastered these skills)

Composition

Focus on speaking and listening skills to develop speech, particularly communicating effectively in words and sentences.

Pupils will need to:

- engage in pre-writing or writing-readiness activities
- practise holding a writing or drawing implement correctly
- practise and enjoy making marks using a variety of materials
- make large marks and small marks, using gross and fine motor skills

Write sentences by:

- I can say out loud what I am going to write about
- I can compose a sentence orally before writing it
- I can sequence sentences to form short narratives
- I can re-read what I have written to check that it makes sense.

Pupils should be taught to:

- I can discuss what I have written
- I can read aloud my writing clearly enough to be heard.

Pupils should be taught to:

- I can leave spaces between words
- I can join words and clauses with and
- I can begin to punctuate sentences using a capital letter and a full stop
- I can begin to punctuate sentences using a question mark or exclamation mark
- I can use a capital letter for names of people, places, the days of the week and the personal pronoun 'I'

upils should be taught to:

develop positive attitudes towards and stamina for writing by:

- I can write narratives about personal experiences and those of others (real and imagined)
- I can write about real events
- I can write poetry
- I can write for different purposes.

Consider what they are going to write about before beginning by:

- I can plan or say out loud what I am going to write about
- I can write down ideas and/or key words
- I can encapsulate what I want to say, sentence by sentence.

Make simple additions and corrections to their own writing by:

- I can evaluate my writing with others
- I can re-read to check sense
- I can re-read to check tense of verbs
